

CAMPUS MEMORANDUM

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY

From: President Ernest L. Wilkinson

Date: 1/31/55

To: Richard D. Poll

FEB 1 1955

Subject: Man, His Origin and Destiny

You may be interested in President Smith's comment to me at the close of last Tuesday's assembly, when my wife and I went up to greet him and Sister Smith. His words were, "There is no turning to the right or turning to the left, in what I said today." I, of course, offered no argument. In fact, except for a couple of girls' encircling us, our "amens" were sincere, and the greetings were cordial.

You may also be interested in the attached letters, both 61, which came to me through friend-spout channels. The first is the one which I mentioned to you as being distributed in some of the Religion classes. The second was, as I understand it, written by Jerry Symine at the suggestion of Elder Adam S. Benning.

At the risk of being charged with idle-bearing, and realizing the shortcomings of hearsay evidence, I would like to add one more point, because I feel strongly that the agitation of the subject of evolution and creation by some members of the faculty is not helpful either to the University or to the Church. A student reported to Brother John E. Gardner that a member of the Religion faculty had made substantially this statement: "The fundamentalist position gives no trouble to really great scientists; it is only pip-squeaks like we have here at the who cause trouble."

As I suggested in our evening conversation, which both Gene and I enjoyed very much, if the folks who subscribe to the literalist position will stop making noise of it, there will be no difficulty whatever with the faculty members of the Midsec-Talinge persuasion.
